"The critical action of our time is to reconnect ourselves so that we can begin again to act as powerful villages."

-- John McKnight, founder Asset Based Community Development Institute

If you have been involved in your neighborhood for any period of time, you know that the key to getting anything done is building strong relationships among neighbors who enjoy working together for the common good. The Neighborhood Partners Network offers tools and coaching to help you build those relationships and create a powerful neighborhood organization that can address any challenge, make exciting things happen, and have a great time in the process.

Through four sessions, a core team of ideally 4-8 people from your neighborhood will learn with teams from other neighborhoods across our region. The curriculum includes lots of hands-on learning, tools and discussion. In between sessions, a Neighborhood Partners Network coach will work with you in your neighborhood to put your learning into practice.

Our goal is to help you create strong neighborhood organizations that engage lots of people in making your neighborhood the best place it can possibly be.

When this started, I saw myself as the new person on the block with little impact. Now I see more leadership and connecting opportunities, as well as ways that I can help others contribute.

-- Becky Deuel, Erb Park

I'm thankful for all of you experts, facilitators for your advice and your views and how you're able to teach us how to do that and take it back to our neighborhoods.

-- Vicki Bokelman, Jefferson Park
